

World Cup winners join forces with England

Rawtenstall-based Niche Kitchens teams up with Italian kitchen giants Aran Cucine.

Owned and managed by husband and wife team, Paul and Marie Milner, Niche Kitchens has outgrown their Kay Street kitchen studio of the past three years and is now opening with a much larger and brighter kitchen showroom on Burnley Road, half a mile north of Rawtenstall.

The move has provided an exciting opportunity to introduce Aran Cucine; an Italian range of kitchens which display style and quality and are added to their existing range of contemporary and traditional kitchens. Niche Kitchens are Lancashire's representative of Aran Cucine in the UK, giving you the chance to own your own piece of Italian craftsmanship.

With a vast array of kitchen models to choose from, each component is manufactured in Italy by Aran Cucine and has been since 1962. Aran Cucine is the best selling Italian kitchen manufacturer in the world, selling in New York, Beijing and more than 3500 other showrooms in 188 countries worldwide.

Italy is the undisputed master of design, from art to fashion, from architecture to kitchen design; Italy has had the edge over the competition and Aran Cucine is no exception.

Support throughout the project

The business has built a strong reputation by focussing its main objective on interior designs which are functional and inspirational.

The kitchen design specialist will develop a style as individual as you are, while maintaining practicality.

Niche Kitchens provide a support service before and after your purchase providing confidence and assurance in your long term investment.

Each individual project is managed by Paul, a kitchen design specialist—who also has combined background experience of kitchen installation and contract management which guarantees you attention to detail throughout your entire kitchen project.

Paul Milner says "there is space for creativity in any kitchen design, no matter how much actual physical space you have, and with the kitchen now the centre of any home, our goal is to constantly expand the possibilities in any kitchen design."
